"Made from the often overlooked, fragrant Piedmontese variety of freisa. As the name suggests, it does taste remarkably of fresh strawberries. This "frizzante" expression is very low pressure with a pleasant, barely-there sparkle in the glass, a hint of sweetness, relatively supple tannins and a wholly refreshing nature. Easy drinking, crushable and definitely different! Youthful and widely appealing Pair with soft cheeses or dishes with a slight kick of spice."-90 points

The vineyards are grown without the use of chemical fertilizers, herbicides, Obtained from pure Croatia grapes, cultivated on calcareous-clayey soils, The vinification involves a soft and slow pressing and destemming, followed by maceration on the skins for 8-10 days and subsequent racking. The refinement takes place for at least 12 months in 500-liter barrels. The wine has a ruby red color, sometimes tending towards garnet. On the nose it offers a pleasant, slightly herbaceous bouquet. On the palate it is dry, slightly tannic, with an interminable persistence.
